Speakers sought for NATP's annual Taxposium event

Proposals due Dec. 15, 2022

APPLETON, Wis. (Nov. 17, 2022) – Tax industry professionals come from around the country to attend the National Association of Tax Professionals' (NATP) annual education event – Taxposium. As the association begins to plan for the 2023 event, it is seeking other industry professionals to lead sessions during the July event.

Seasoned speakers with stories to share or represent a product/service that tax professionals must have are invited to submit a session proposal by Dec. 15, 2022. Taxposium will also feature sessions on leadership and professional development such as office organization, work/life balance, social media and marketing, hiring and human resources, and corporate responsibility.

“Last year’s inaugural event was unforgettable, and part of its success came from the exceptional speakers,” said NATP’s manager of in person events, Amanda Joslin. “We are once again putting out a call for proposals and can’t wait to see what types of topics will be presented in 2023.”

All sessions will be presented in person July 24-26, 2023, at the Grant Hyatt in San Antonio, Texas.

To speak with someone further about this event, please contact Nancy Kasten or Samantha Strong.
