National Association of Tax Professionals announces 2021 board of directors

One new member elected

APPLETON, Wis. (Jan. 27, 2021) – Members of the National Association of Tax Professionals (NATP) elected one new member to its 2021 board of directors. Charles Markham, MST, EA, joins eight additional board members who will guide the association through the coming year.

Other board members include: Brett Rosser, EA, president; Jaimee Hammer, EA, vice president; Sherri Hoskisson, EA, MST, secretary; Jim Vann, CRTP, AFSP, treasurer; Sally Achord, EA; Melissa Bowman, EA; and Richard Ganong, MBA, EA.

Rosser served his first year as board president in 2020. He has previously served on the National Finance Committee and as vice president.

All board members must work full time or part time in the tax preparation industry and have been an NATP member for three of the last five years, one of which is the year preceding their nomination.

Board members serve a three-year term beginning on Jan. 1, immediately following the member's election and can serve only three consecutive candidacies within any 14-year period.

Members of the NATP Board of Directors help set the standard for excellence and integrity in the tax industry. Our board members build relationships, identify challenges and develop solutions.
